#1

Get Evidence

After you're hurt, there's going to be a lot of evidence. You need to make sure that you collect all of the evidence. You can do that by taking photos on your phone of everything that relates to your injury. You will also want to get contact information from anyone who saw you get hurt. A lawyer can help you get even more evidence that you can use to build your case.

#2

See a Doctor

Perhaps the most important thing about a personal injury case is getting your injuries taken care of by a doctor. Do not delay. You have to get to a doctor as soon as you can. Being in pain is not normal. Get treatment as soon as you can.

#3

Follow Up With Doctor Appointments

If you have a doctor that gives you specific instructions, you need to listen to their advice. It won't help you in the long run if you don't go to follow up appointments. Do the right thing for yourself and do everything your doctor tells you to do.

#4

Don't Talk to Insurance Reps

The insurance company is going to reach out to you to get a statement. Do not give them one. You don't need to give them a statement. If you do, they might trick you into saying something that could ruin your case. Let your lawyer handle them.

#5

Get a Trial Lawyer

You want to make sure you have the right person on your case. Don't hire a lawyer just because you've heard their name before. Hire a lawyer you can trust to represent your case well. Don't settle for anything less than an experienced trial lawyer.

#6

Don't Wait to Get Started

Don't wait to call a lawyer. You want to make sure that you are getting ahead of the game here. If you wait too long, you may not ever be able to bring a case, so don't delay. Call a lawyer right away

#7

Understand Your Rights

When you are hurt, you have a right to bring a personal injury case against the person who hurt you. That person who is responsible for your pain. They should know that they did something wrong. They are responsible for your damages.
